

AlmaDL Website Terms and Conditions of Use

1. Alma Mater Studiorum - University of Bologna pursues the primary objective to contribute to the scientific and cultural development of the community through the implementation of tools aimed to facilitate the dissemination and circulation of knowledge, such as the free availability of scientific and cultural outputs of the University itself and its partners.

To this purpose, the University has created and activated the AlmaDL service, a free open access tool designed to disseminate and share the outputs of scientific and academic activities of lecturers and researchers.

AlmaDL can publish contributions by those authors who take part in the scientific, educational and cultural activities of the University.

The conditions and procedures regarding the access to the AlmaDL service can be found on the webpage <http://almadl.unibo.it/servizi>. Any interested parties are requested to read the terms and conditions carefully.

AlmaDL is managed by the Division “Area Biblioteche e Servizi allo Studio” (“ABIS”) of the University, based in Bologna, viale Filopanti n. 7.

2. The contents of the website AlmaDL (<http://almadl.unibo.it/>) (hereinafter referred to as “Website”) are protected by copyright and all the rights are reserved.

It is strictly forbidden to download and use any material published on the website without prior consent, in addition to any activity which may cause damage to the legitimate interests of the University or the authors and holders of copyright on the intellectual work published.

The Website and its contents can be used for personal purposes only, for research or educational activities, with the exclusion of any direct or indirect commercial purposes.

3. The texts and works accessible via the Website can be freely accessed. Unless stated otherwise, the texts and works published via the Website can also be printed in hard copy or saved on electronic supports by visitors who use personal equipment (the use of external professional printers is forbidden) on condition they are intended for personal use only, for research or educational purposes, excluding any direct or indirect commercial activities and provided that the holder of the copyright has not forbidden the activities above mentioned.

The forwarding via web, the distribution or the sharing of the texts and works in any form, including the forwarding via email, are only allowed within the terms and conditions of service and if specifically authorised by the author or the copyright holder and with the provision that the works are always quoted with a clear indication of the complete hyperlink to the AlmaDL website where the works are published.

Any other use or right on the works is reserved to author/copyright holder, unless otherwise indicated.

4. As established by art. 1, paragraph 1 of the Decree-Law dated 22nd March 2004, n. 72, then modified and converted to law on 21st May 2004 Law n. 128, with regards to the works on this Website, the University informs to have fulfilled the copyright obligations and any other related rights.

The infringement of copyright and connected rights entails the application of the sanctions imposed by Paragraph III of the Section III of Law n. 633 dated 22nd April 1941 and its following amendments and additions, in specific, articles 171, 171-bis, 171-ter, 174-bis, 174-ter of the law mentioned.

5. The University does not have control on the contents of the materials published. The University provides only the necessary technologies and electronic resources to make available to the public the works published via the website, upon request of the authors and/or copyright holders. The information included on the Website such as any quality checks on the published material (i.e. internal, National or International referee) are supplied by the authors/or copyright holders under their responsibility.

The University therefore declines any responsibility with regards to the texts, materials and works published on the Website. The author is to be held responsible for the contents of texts, materials and works, including the ownership and legitimacy of usage of texts, images, pictures and any other items.

The University commits, upon a detailed request in writing, to remove any materials where there may be any third party claims, or when the work published and its contents may damage any third party legal rights.

6. Other websites are allowed to add on their pages a hyperlink to the home page of the AlmaDL Website.

Deep links are allowed provided these are done for not-for-profit purposes and by quoting correctly the source of the contents.

It is not allowed to use hyperlinks which may prevent the identification of the metadata (i.e. framing of the contents).

The Website features also some links to websites supervised by third parties not connected with the University. The University does not guarantee and does not take any responsibility regarding the contents and information provided by third parties, their availability, completeness and accuracy, nor with regards to the contents of the websites of third parties. The University does not guarantee and takes no responsibility with regards to the contents, the availability and functioning of any website which may be linked to, or which may give access to the Website.

7. Information according to art. 13 of the Decree-Law dated 30th June 2003, n. 196 – Personal Data Protection Act.

The controller of the personal data provided by the User to the Website is Alma Mater Studiorum-University of Bologna whose head office is situated in Bologna, via Zamboni n. 33. The person responsible for the personal data handling is the Director of the Department “Area Biblioteche e Servizi allo Studio”, situated in Bologna, viale Filopanti n. 7. The personal data will be processed and held on computer strictly abiding by the Decree-Law dated 30th June 2003, n. 196 – Personal Data Protection Act, in accordance with the general principles of openness, fairness and confidentiality.
